About

After graduating from Cooper Union, where she focused primarily on installation art, Mimi Jung received a scholarship to study communication design in Basel, Switzerland. From there she returned to New York to work for Art+Commerce, where she designed books and exhibitions, before eventually taking some time off.

Mimi used her time off to explore personal art projects, incorporating various materials that she found inspiring. One of these projects, an oversized agate necklace that Mimi designed for herself, evolved into her debut collection, "Surrounded".

Mimi's first jewelry collection received an overwhelming response, and was featured in the pages of The New York Times, Lucky Magazine, New York Magazine, Teen Vogue, and Paper Magazine. The collection sold across the US and UK at shops such as Maryam Nassir Zadeh, Shopshop, and Secre.
